Accidental Mobilization Demonstrales Preparedness of France For Conflict

Paris, France, March 23,-A mobilization of French troops of the Montbellard district at Belfort, sithough caused by a mistake, has served to demonstrate French prepared-ness along the frontier. The mobilization resembles on a smaller scale that of Arracount more than a year scale that of Arracourt more than a year ago.

Early this week a certin number of reservisis of the Montbellard district received mobilization criters on paper, heared "Ministry of War," enjoining upon them to "set out immediately and without delay." The reservists started, and began to pour into Belfort from mine in the evening onwards. By midnight all those who had received mobilization sheets had arrived, and were awaiting further orders.

As no information as to the monthimation had reached Belfort, the reservists were sent back to their homes. An inquiry was opened, and it was discovered that the folse alarm was due, as in the case of Arracourt, to the error of a postal employe, who had by inadvectance opened a package intended for the military administration.
